

Guide to Renting

Start by asking questions

When renting in NYC, preparation is key. The process is a fast one. So before the search starts, feel free to ask any and all questions about neighborhoods, building types, transportation access, what's included and what's not. This way, Corcoran independent agents can assure that they've customized the search to one you're happy with.

Then, note these 5 handy tips:

1. Prioritize your wants and needs.

Work with your agent to determine what is important in your new home. The 3 largest variables are size, location and price. From there, you can discuss other features such as views or building amenities.

2. Discuss your financial situation.

If you know what your budget is, before you head out, you'll save time and energy.

3. Start your search 30-60 days ahead of time.

If you search too soon or too late, then you may not see the best available inventory.

4. Have your monies ready.

If you find a place you like, it's best to make a financial commitment immediately.

5. Organize your documents.*

you'll need:

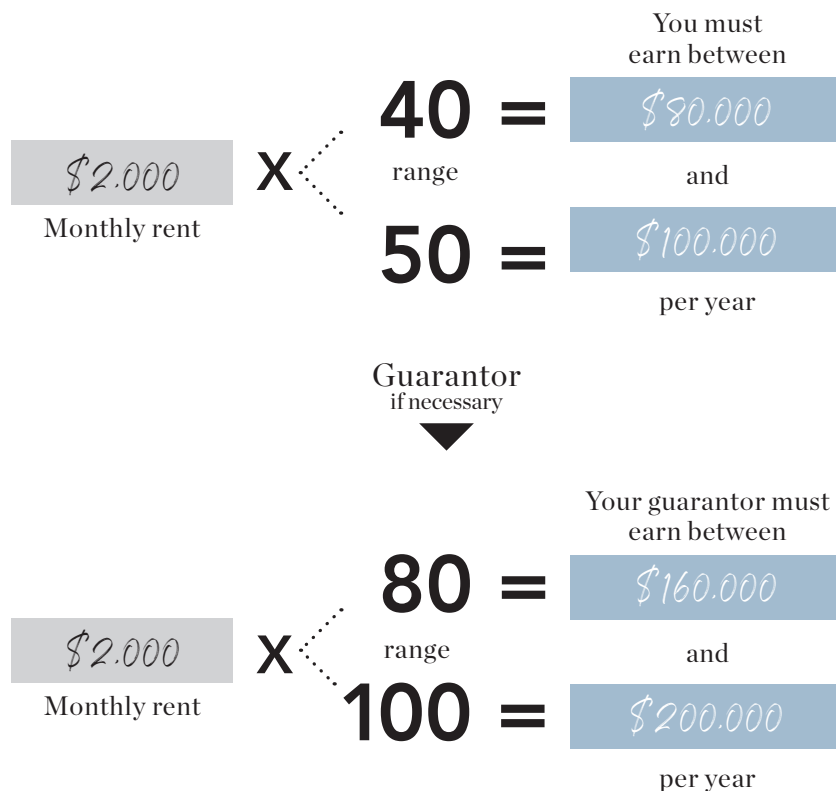

1. Verification of income, from any lawful source, including but not limited to wages, alimony, social security, child support, federal, state, or local public assistance, etc.
2. A letter from your employer stating your salary, length of employment and opportunities for bonuses (if applicable).
3. Your last two pay stubs (if applicable).
4. Your last two years of tax returns (if applicable).
5. Your last two months' bank statements (if applicable).
6. Contact information for previous landlords.
7. Verification of other assets, if any.
8. Photo ID (Driver's License, Passport, etc.).

*The above requirements do not apply if you have rental vouchers or other similar rental assistance that meet or exceed the rental price.

Moving costs and salary requirements*

To be approved for an apartment (without rental vouchers or other similar rental assistance), you'll be expected by many landlords to make 40 to 50 times the monthly rent and go through a credit check. If your annual salary does not meet that requirement, then it may be possible to combine salaries of roommates/partners or use a guarantor. Many landlords require that a guarantor typically make 80 to 100 times the required monthly rent and most landlords prefer that they be from the Tri-State area (NY, NJ, CT). If you meet the requirements for a specific listing, you may apply.
